“Training the trainer” is a special class for all those who wish to take forward the experience they got at “A mouthful of theatre”.

This workshop is dedicated to people who already have some experience in amateur theatre and they intent to direct theatre performances or to keep, later on, their own workshop for the theatre group they belong to.

The very objective of the “A mouthful of theatre” event is helping amateur groups grow and produce better performances. In this purpose a number of participants, no more than 2-4 people for each class will be trained by their workshop leaders in order to get the ability of teaching further their new found skills. Having passed this phase, these participants will also become trainers in their area of study (body, voice or text) and will go on improving and further sharing their skills.
